From the Latin of Tibullus.

BY JOHN G. SAXE.

"Ah we love each other well;
Better far than words can tell,"
Said my charmer—"but in vain
Are my efforts to explain
How it happened!—Tell me now,
Dearrest, of the why and how!
Since the fact we cannot doubt,
Tell me how it came about."

Well, my darling, I will try
To explain the how and woyn;
(Speaking for myself—not yon;
(Speaking for myself—not yon;
Not your (brilliant) mind alone
Could have thus enthralled my own;
Not the charms of every grace
Beaming from your sunny face;
Not your vioce—though music be
Less melodious to me!
Not your kisses—sweeter far
Than the drops of Hybla are;
None of thees, from each apart,
Could have so enchained my heart;
Nay not e'en the wonderous whole
Could have fixed my wayward soul;
Ind not love—your love—prevailed,
All the service of the conderous whole
There! you have the reason, dear;
Is the explanation clear?

The Bottom of the Ocean.

Mr. Green, the famous diver, tells singular stories of his adventures when making search in the deep waters of the ocean. He gives some sketches of what he saw on the river banks near Hayti:

"The banks of coral on which my divings were made, are about forty miles in length, and from ten to twenty in breadth. On this bank of coral is presented to the diver one of the most beautiful and sublime scenes the eye ever beheld. The water varies from ten to one hundred feet in depth, and is so clear that the diver can see from two to three hundred feet, when submerged, with little obstruction to the sight. The bottom of the ocean in many places upon these banks is a smooth as a marble floor; in others it is studded with coral columds from ten to eighty feet in diameter. The tops of those more lofty support a myriad of pyramidal pendants, each forming a myriad more, giving a reality to the imaginary abode of some waternymph. In other places the pendants form arch after arch; and as the diver stands on the bottom of the ocean, and gazes through these into the deep winding avenue, he feels that they fill him with an awe as if he were in some old cathedral which had long been buried beneath "old overy crevice of the corals where the waters deposited the least earth. They were all of a faint hue, owing to the pale light they receive, although of every shade, and entirely different from plants I am familiar with that vegetate upon dry land. One in particular attracted my attention; it resembled a sea-fan of immense size, of variegated colors, and of the most brilliant hue. The fish which inhabit these silvery banks I found as different in kind as the scenery was varied. They were of all forms, colors and sizes—from the symmetrical goby to the glob-like sun-fish; from those of the dullest hue to the changeable dolphin; from the spots of the leopard to the hues of the sunbeam; from the humber of the sunbeam; from the humber of the voracious shark. Some have heads like squirrels, others like cats and dogs; one of small size resembled a bull-terier. Some darted through the water like meteors; while others could scarcely be seen to move. To enumerate and explain all the different kinds of fish which I beheld while diving on these banks would, were I enough of a naturalist so to do, require more space than my limits would allow; for I am convinced that most of the kinds of fish which inhabit the tropical sea can be found there. The sun-fish, the saw-fish, white shark, blue or shovel-nosed shark, were often seen. There were also fish which resembled plants, and remained as fixed in their position as a shrub. The only power they possessed was to open and shut when in danger."

Hence, instigation to revolt on one side and repressive measures on the other, with blood-shed and anarchy in the island, and a hostile attitude between the soverignties. The population is 365,000, of whom 120,000 are Mohammedans. Greece is dominated by the idea of expansion to her ancient territorial proportions, and her rise to the position of arbiter of the East. Like the Northern States of the American Union, her people believe they have a 'mission' to fulfill; hence the difficulties of the 'Eastern Question.' Having put an end to actual hostilities in Crete, the pending troubles being, as appears, brigandage, aggravated by Greek instigations and aid, the Sultan, in the year just past, provided a government for the island which it thus stated: The general administration, separated from the military command, is confided to a governor-general, assisted by two counsellors, the one-chosen from among the Mussulmen, the other from among the Christian functionaries of the empire. The island is divided into districts and cantons administered by governors, of whom half are Mussulmen, and the other half Christian. Every governors, of whom half are Mussulmen, and the other half Christian. Every governors, of whom half are Mussulmen, and the other half Christian. Every governors, of whom half are Mussulmen, and the other half Christian. The value of learning a trade becomes more and more certain every day. Scarcely a week passes but some young man is asking us to point out a field of labor for him. With good attainments, perhaps, or an insatiable desire to be at work at something whereby an honest penny may be turned, he finds himself landed as it were at the first ebb of the tide. The slightest recession of the waters deposits him on the shore among the weeds of idleness, and unwholesome vapors becloud his mind. There is scarcely a man in business but has an experience like ours; his young friends continually envying him the privilege of working in a well-defined field, and wishing like him they had something to strike at.

These young men are generally afflicted with the disease of ambition. They want to be something more than common, and mistaking often their desires for the ability to satisfy them, they flatter themselves that they are fit for something better than the common run of humanity. Their fault is in trying to achieve manhood without serving an apprenticeship to it, and they find themselves, when they should be prepared for their liftwork, wondering what it will be, and fretting because it doesn't declare itself, and nine cases out of ten will be, and fretting because it doesn't declare itself, and nine cases out of ten will be, and fretting because it doesn't declare itself, and nine cases out of ten will be, and fretting because it doesn't declare itself, and nine cases out of ten will be, and fretting because it doesn't the carpenter's bench, in a machine shoop or at the anvil, so that when the young man commences his battle with life in any vocation, he can, it worked the strength will at least procure that his skilled labor will at least procure desirable roads to success, foots up a considerable total on the loss side of 'the balance sheet.

The Comino Girl.—She will vote, will be of some use in the world, will cook her own food, will earn her living, and will not die an old maid. The coming girl will not wear the Grecian bend, dance the Norman, ignore all possibilities of knowing how to work, will not endeavor to break the hearts of unsophisticated young men, will spell correctly, understand English before she affects French, will preside with equal grace at the piano and the washboard, will spin more yarn for the house than for the street, will not despise her plain clad mother, her poor relations, or the hand of an honest worker, will wear a bonnet, speak good, plain vnlisping English, will darn her own stockings, will know how to make doughnuts, and will not read the New York Ledger oftener than she does her Bible.

The coming girl will walk five miles a day, if need be, to keep her cheeks in glow, will mind her health; her physical developement and her mother, will adopt a costume both sensible and conducive to comfort and health; will not confound hypocracy with politeness; will not practice lying to please, instead of frankness; will have the courage to cut an unwelcome acquaintance, will not think that duplicity is French refinement; that assumed hospitality, where laste dwell in the heart, is better than outspoken condemnation; will not confound grace of movement with silly affectation; will not regard it as the end of her very being to have a beau; will not smile and be a villian still.

The coming girl will not look to Paris but to persons for her fashions; will not aim to follow a foolish fashion; because milliners and dressmakers have decreed it. Duty will be her aim and her life a living sacrifice.

How to Ruin a Town:—The Dubuque Herald gives the following receipt for knocking a town stiff and dead: If you wish to kill off a town, put up no more buildings than you are obliged to occupy yourself. If you should happen to have an empty building, and one should want to rent it, ask about three times its actual value. Look at every newcomer with a scowl. Turn a cold shoulder to every business man or mechanic seeking a home among you. Go abroad for wares rather than purchace of your own merchants or manufacturers at the same prices. Refuse to advertise in your own local paper, so that a person at a distance will not suppose any business is being done in the place. A prompt and close observance of these rules will ruin any town.

VYLUE OF THE COTTON CROP.—According to to the Augusta Chronicle, the present cotton crop of Georgia will yield from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 in gold.

"The estimated value of the cotton crop for the last year, including the recent advance in price, is over two hundred and fifty millions of dollars—a fact which certainly dispels the idea of proleuged poverty. North Carolina alone has raised nearly $15,000,000 worth of cotton and all her products for the same period foot up $40,000,009." It is estimated in the South that the cotton crop will give a surplus of $125,000,000.

Married women, says a statistician, on an average, live until forty-five, while unmarried women do not live longer than forty-three. Thus, every man who refuses to marry shortens some woman's life two years, and thus practically commits thomocide. "Let us have posee," was the rallying cry of the dominant party, throughout the progress of the late Presidential campaign. But what mockery was contained in those words,—what bitter irony,—is seen in the whole record of that party, since. But, that they should break the reigning peace among themselves, was hardly to have been expected. Look, however, at the following record of Wednesdays proceedings, while counting the vote for President, which we take from the columns o a Republican paper. The Rev. President Blanchard, of Wheaton College, Illinois—a devout admirer of the late Thaddeus Stevens—gives to the Cincinnati Gazette "personal recol-lections of his friend." GRAND VOCAL AND INSTRUMENTAL CONCERT, AND FESTIVAL.—Union Lodge, No. 5, A. F. A, M. of Middletown, will give a Grand Vocal and Instrumental Concert, at the Town Hall, on Tucsday and Wednesday evenings, March 30, and 31. A double quartette, (or eight voices,) has been engaged, and also one of the most skilful pianists in the country. The musical talent engaged for this concert comprises some of the best voices known to the profession, and the whole of them are of a high order of merit. The managers are able to promise to this community a rare musical treat, one which cannot be surpassed in our largest cities. Our own orchestra, the Amphions, will also be present, to contribute their unrivalled aid to the entertainment. The occasion is also designed to be one of social enjoyment; with this view the managers have determined to hold a Festival, each evening, and to provide every delicacy appropriate and to provide every delicacy appropriate to the season. The Concert will be under the direction of Mr. J. T. Wells, of Phil-

Terrible Accident...-Last Saturday week a man named Rogers, at Greensboro, Md. fell in the fire-place and burned his face to a crisp. One eye was burned out. He had just moved in the house that day, from Philadelphia, and was in the room by himself in the act of taking some medicine, and fainted it is supposed. His wife, on entering from an adjoining room, was unable to pull him from the fire until assistence was rendered, he being a large man. He was taken back to Philadelphia on Monday last, Superintendent Semall giving the family a pass over the road. His face is literally cooked.

The long expected tax bill has not yet made its appearance from the Committee of Ways and Means, where it has been undergoing a rigid moulding process preparatory to its introduction to the House, which period is somewhere away in the future, which indicates that the ears our Legislators will be saluted with the Spring song of the robin and blue bird, ere the business of the session closes.

The new school code is now fairly before the Legislature, and petitions in favor of it and remonstrances against it are now pouring in quite lively, receiving proper reference. The indications at present are that the proposed new code will not receive a very strong support from any member of the Legislature, yet there is an evident disposition to make some change in the existing law.

Mr. Meredith has introduced a preamble and resolution into the House calling for the appointment of a committee to examine into the banking and financial privileges of the State, and devising some plan whereby the financial pressure under which the State is now laboring may be relieved, and report by bill or otherwise. The preamble and resolution were adopted and referred to the following committee—Messrs. Meredith, Mitchell, Bacon, Robinson and Cloud.

Many of the smiling faces which met our gaze were familiar, giving zest to our participations. Among the fair ones at-tracting our attention for exquisitness were Misses K., C., R., D., M. A. C., E. D. M., J. W., M. S., A. M., and G., whose

Mr. Editor — In reading your valuable paper, I am pleased to find communications from many parts of the country, but as yet, have seen none from our divided City. I will, therefore, endeavor to give you some items which may be of some interest to your many readers.

The Chesapeake & Delaware Canal Coare busily engaged repairing their Lock at this place, during which time all trade will gecase, except that of the Philadelphia and Baltimore Transportation Line, which proposes to transfer their freight from one boat to another, at this place, during the time it takes to repair said Lock, which will take from six to ten days.

Our ice men are getting a little sick on the question; thus far there has not been a pound of this Summer luxury saved.

The protracted meeting, which has been in progress for some four weeks, came to a close last evening, with very little success. Ephraim appeared to be joined to his idols, and the decision of those in authority was, "to let him alone."

Another Letter from Sinapis.

Correspondence of the Middletown Transcript

Kent County, MD. Feb. 4th, 1869. Kent County, MD. Feb. 4th, 1869.

Mr. Editor.—Is it within the province of Philosophy to account for the fact that human nature can bear with complacent serenity any amount of flattery however fulsome, but not the least particle of plain honest truth? A little of the latter has raised a furious storm of editorial indignation in the Masonic Hall, and Court Street in Chestertown. The Kent News, generally sober, staid and courteous, waxes restive under the application of a simple Sinapasm, while your more irascible name-sake actually boils over and does some-body the honor of publishing entire, an article, which but for its wrath, would never have gained admission to its columns.

Well way we wonderingly ask in the

But in other respects the Voshell House is an excellent hotel. Its sleeping arrangements are equal to any in the State, and the proprietor is courteous and obliging. It was built by an enterprising citizen of Kent County, then and now a resident of Baltimore, and not by the capital or enterprize of Chestertown. So far the Transcript agrees with me and is right. Most, perhaps, of the new buildings erected in the town within the last six or eight years have been built by Major Richard Smythe, a citizen, not of Chestertown, but of the county.

Yours, as pungent as ever,

Crime in New York City.

New York city has become illustrious among the cities of the earth for daily robberies of large sums of money and securities. Banks are robbed in open day. Paekages of money are seized in the crowded streets. Thieves infest the street cars and railway stations, and in fact there is the least possible security for property of a portable kind. The following is an account of one of the bold deeds of the Broadway pirates:

"About 7 o'clock last evening William Morey, one of the attachees of the gaming

Well may we wonderingly ask, in the language of the old Mantuan Bard, slighty modified—

"Tante ne animis puritibus ire?"
Can wrath so dire in minds so microseopie dwell? But let us congratulate ourselves.—The end has been attained—Old Rip Van Winkle has been disturbed. The town is aroused from its inglorious monotony—at least let us hope so.

There is truth, says the Transcript Senior,—your Senior—not of the Boston chap, at the other "hub"—in the fact of the old grave yard; but the world is left to infer that this is all that was true. This is really too bad of your Senior. Was it not asserted that there was a Bank there, and that its present officers are men of integrity? And is not this true? Is the Court Street Editor "some cion transplant" that he can so deliberataly ignoralle the virtues of his fellow townsmen? How are we to account for it? Yet stranger; still,—in the same paper in which the editorial thunder (brutun falmen) is launched at your devoted head,—I find an editorial under the caption of "Public Spirit," in which a comparison is drawn between the "siprit of progress" evinced by the citizens of Hanesville? More of the epirit of progress in Hanesville and in, in Chestertown! And what is Hanesville and cartwright's shop combined, is Hanesville and cartwright's shop combined to their account is not because he did not the cart for the white and cartwright's shop combined to the cart for the conviction of the spir in Chestertown! And what is Hanesville? Two dwellings, one store, and a smitty and cartwright's statement?

"Whom the God's would destroy they first make mad." Beware, dear Senior, whatever you do, don't get mad. On more quiet friends of the News are decidely cool. According to their account Sinapis has not uttered a word of truth. There is no old grave yard, no Bank, no trustworthy officers. There was no ean might be simple singular to the third, at all. Is there no Missionary in the Delaware forest who could be induced to visit against the would meet with instant death, the roll-bar at he would meet with instant death, the roll-bar at few him on the floor, and gagged mater or gas into the town. No truth at all. Is there no Missionary in the Delaware forest who could be induced to visit again who would not ext because he did not understand how rice grew. His incredulity was measured by his lack of understanding, and he starved to death. By all means send a missionary.

Sinapis would tender his compliments to the Chestertown Editors, with the most no sitive assurance that he is not an exotic; no "cion of the Delaware forest," but agenuine son of glorious old Kent, to be far more glorious when she shall assert to the Chestertown Editors, with the most not be renergies.

Further, they may be assured that such is the honest sentiment of ninety of every hundred of her citizens, outside of the town of the Delaware forest, but to this. One of these causes unquestionably is to be found in the demoralizing influence of Chestertown. The road would now have been in operation, but for his and ple upon the rights of the people of the search and the sample upon the rights of the third was a small seed, if grew in the head of the proper of the people of the output, and with their plander of the people of the people of the word of the proper of the people of the people of the cuttor, of the little town by the energy and intelligence of the people of the independence of the people of the control of the little town by the energ ple upon the rights of the people of this clique-ridden county.

Perhaps your 'mustard' was stronger than the patient could well bear with patience, but it was of that kind so shrewdly guessed by the Transcript Editor; it was a small seed, it grew in the marvellously fettle soil of Kent County, and an aptemblem of that faith which looks forward to the extension and 'reconstruction' of the little town by the energy and intelligence of the people of the county.

If there was too much vinegar in the cataplasm, the Editor can remedy the mistake by throwing in a little of his all-call-lite.

Should another application be needed, we may undertake the task of ventilating the subject of bogus votes manufactured to defeat the ridge route of the Railroad, and other appliances to secure a majority in the Board of Directors, in favour of the curve into Chestertown.

It is easy to call names, and quite smart, but Mrs. Fidget can whisper a good deal about the doings of this town clique that the the News nor Transcript dare with the Railroad, and the rappliance to secure a majority in the Board of Directors, in favour of the curve into Chestertown.

MILITARY PREPARATIONS IN EUROPE.—
A military correspondent of the London Times gives a picture of the present actual stage of military preparation in Europe, which shows that it is "without parallel in the world." Five continental nations have five and a-half millions of men either ready to march to-morrow or to follow at short intervals. These are the forces of the first-class continental powers, and do not include Great Britain, Spain, Portugal, Turkey, Greece, Belgium, Holland, or the Seandinavian nations. This immense number, moreover, only embraces the more active elements, and not the outsiders, who, it is considered, would be pretty certain to be called on if war should last two or three years, a contingency which would swell the sum, according to the estimate of the Times, to ten millions the estimate of the Times, to ten millio which would swell the sum, according to the estimate of the Times, to ten millions armed men. Five millions and a-half of men, already withdrawn from the work of productive industry, with the possibility, in the event of war, of the horde of consumers being swollen to ten millions.

The imagination is staggered at this stupendous enumeration, but the numbers, vast as they are, are practically multiplied at least fivefold in their capacity for destruction by the wonderful inventions and improvements which have been made in musketry, artillery and all kinds of arms; in ammunition and carriages; in facilities of transportation and other points formerly unknown. It has been a favorite delusion of the idolators of material progress that civilization is steam, gas, railroads, electricity: but, side by side with the triumuphs of peaceful invention, or rather far ahead of them, is the "art of human destruction," which the Times trulysays "have for many years been allowed to take precedence over all other arts. It has been studied with greater skill, and made the subject of the most costly experiments."

Here then, in the heart of Europe, the estly experiments."

Here then, in the heart of Europe, the costly experiments."

Here then, in the heart of Europe, the centre and capital of the world's civilization, stand five millions and a half of men armed with weapons made to carry as far and as accurately, and to fire as rapidly as possible, and thus to produce the utipost attainable destruction of human life. What an inconsistent being is man! What an anomaly in the whole animated creation! The fruits of his creative energies are blasted, ere they have fully ripened, by his appetites for destruction! With one hand he rears the temple of civilization, and with the other he pulls it down. Unlike the animals, he is involved in deadly struggles with those who are not his natural enemies; and whose slaughter is not demanded by any of his appetites. These five and a half millions of European soldiers who are now standing ready to rend each other at the word of command, have no hatred towards each other; no interest, except in peace; do not desire to be where they are. Even other; no interest, except in peace; do not desire to be where they are. Even their monarchs profess to wish for peace. and probably are sincere in the profession, but mutual jealousies have induced them all to arm, and thus Europe is covered all over with enormous heaps of combustibles, which any stray spark may set on fire, and involve the Old World in the horrors and involve the Old World in the horrors of a universal conflagration. Alas, why will the many thus allow the few to dispose of them for life and for death? Does not this condition of things give the lie to the boasted enlightenment and freedom of man at this period, and in looking at it, may not one well ask if we be not still groping in the darkness of a stupid and iboorish age.—Bultimore San.

Thus fondly does the grown-up boy
Pursue each glittering thing,
And chase the fleeting forms of joy
Forever on the wing;
And flattering Hope still leads him on,
Till youth and strength, like dreams, have go
While yet he's wandering;
And all, at length, elude his hand,
And leave him heart-sick and unmanned;
Then come regrets and tears full fast,
And naught but sorrow's gained at last.

The Flight of Birds.

The Flight of Birds.

We suppose it is not generally known what speed birds can attain when on the wing; but some of them cleave the air with almost incredible swiftness. Humboldt says the condor soars to an elevation of twenty-eight thousand feet, from whence he would be able to overlook Great Britain—and then again in a few minutes darts down to the level of the sea. The albatross, quietly facing the gale, bids defiance to the fury of the unshackled storm. The frigate-bird, though frequently met with at the distance of four hundred leagues, or twelve hundred miles at sea, is said to return every night to his solitary land roost. The carrier pigeon has been known to travel in less than six hours from London to Leige, in Belgium. Tealducks have been shot by sportsmen in the waters of Canada with rice from the fields of the Gulf States still undigested in their crops. To perform such flights these birds have been gifted with enormous spread of wing. Thus the pinions of the albatross, extend from ten to thirteen feet, and those of the frigate-bird and condor measure even more from tip to tip.

The tiny humming bird, though gener-

Two hundred miles per hour would appear to be beyond the power of any bird to compass; yet there is every reason to believe that the frigate-bird can sustain this tremendous rate of speed for hours at a time.

The Metropolitan Church, at Washington.

The great Metropolitan Methodist Episeopal Church, at the Capital, is approaching completion. It will be by far the most superbe church owned by the Methodists undertook to rear a national church at the capital. The gigantic enterprise of securing $225,000 was undertaken. Rev. Mr. De Hass was assigned to this work. He has already collected $200,000. The church has three hundred pews. The pulpit furniture is made of wood brought from lands of sacred associations; Gethsemane, the Mount of Olives, and Lebanon make their contributions. The vestibule is to be paved with the marble which one graced the portice of Solomon's Temple. A pew, gorgeously fitted up, is assigned to the President. Pews of lesser magnificance are appropriated to the Vice President and Speaker of the House. Every State in the Union has a pew assigned to it, and the heads of departments are not forgotten. The church is to be opened on the last Sunday in February, the Sunday preceding the inauguration of Gen. Grant. Bishop Simpson is to preach the dedication sermon, and Mr. Punshon, the cloquent Englishman, will preach in the afternoon.

THE FIRST SETTLERS.—Northern writers have furnished our school books and histories long enough. They have related the story of the Pilgrim Fathers with such great length and nice particularity that many of our children think that the Plymouth colony was not only first in point of importance, but first in point of time. Such is not the fact. It is our duty to correct the error. Virtue is not a commodity; but if it were, we do not think the puritans used it all up. There is some left.

The English made a permanent settle-ment at Jamestown, Virginia, in 1607.
The Dutch settled on the spot where New York now stands in 1618; and a Dutch governor presided over this settlement in 1614. The Puritans landed on Plymouth Rock just as the year 1620 expired. So the Jamestown colony was on the soil of the New World thirteen years before the Plymouth.

SEWING MACHINES. R WILCOX & GIBBS

TWISTED LOOP-STITCH FAMILY SEWING MACHINES.

OBVIOUS REASONS WHY THE

WILCOX & GIBBS Family Sewing Machines

ARE BECOMING SO POPULAR: FIRST, Because they make the "TwistFi Loop-Stitch," which is the most Beautiful, Elast c, and Durable Stitch known.

SECOND, Because they are adapted to the Greatest Range of Work, and will use either Coton, Silk, or Linen Thread successfully. THIRD, Because they are Perfectly Simple their Construction; and will Hem, Fell, Stitel Bind, Cord, Tuck, Gather, and Embroider, the most perfect manner.

FOURTH, Because they use but One Spooned are found Competent when all others Fail.

sylvania Central Railroad. ALTOONA, Pa. Sept 14, 1865 One of your Sewing Machines has been used in y family for several years. For simplicity and y family for several years. For simplicity and technical accuracy of construction, I have seen to Sewing Machine equal to it. The speed and prrectness with which it does its work are admirate. It has given and continues to give us entire taitsfaction.

From the Superintendant of the Penn

DOVER, Sept. 12th, 1683 Mesers. Witcox & Gibbs.—Gentenens.—Having had eighteen months' experience with young family Sewing Machine, I take pleasure in say ing that it has given perfect satisfaction. It has been the means of selling several in this locality.

D. F. BURTON.

Scientific Americans of several in this locality.

Scientific Americans, Jan. 20th 1859.—

"The simplicity and accuracy of its mechanism prevent its dropping stitches, to which many other machines are liable, and which has hitherto brought the "chain stitch" into disrepute. One cannot but admire the beauty and accuracy of its movements, and the entire absence of all noise, even when running at the rate of 2000 stitches and upward per minute. This alone must prove a great recommendation to it. A nother merit is the good workmanship. The parts are made interchangeable, so that in the event of accident to the machine, any part can be replaced, at a triffing cost. It is, indeed, a "mechanical wonder—a household necessity!"

PHILADELPHIA PRESS, 1860.—"The un-paralleled success which has attended the intro-duction of the Wilcox & Gibbs Sewing Machine a sure guarantee of its merits."
